Bridon-Bekaert Ropes Group Tax Strategy

The responsibility for the Global tax strategy and the management of Tax risks ultimately sits with the Chief Financial Officer of Bridon-Bekaert. The day to day responsibility for each of the areas considered in the Tax Policy is taken care of by the Group Financial Controller of BBRG (aligned with the Bekaert Group Tax department).

I. (Tax) Risk Management

Tax Risk Management aims at identifying and managing all material tax risks, including the assessment on the impact of these tax risks and the likeliness they will occur. Furthermore, it includes the process of either eliminating the risk or minimizing the likeliness. The tax risk management aims for the avoidance of unnecessary disputes. The Risk Management process assesses both the long and short term risks, and also considers risks outside the direct scope of tax such as reputational risk and risk in respect of the relationship with stakeholders. This process of risk Management is entirely integrated in the Enterprise Risk Management process of Bekaert Group

Specifically for the assessing and managing of the tax risks at the level of the BBRG entities in the UK, the following guiding principles are applied and communicated:

- We aim to do our Tax Compliance correctly, completely and timely. We want to meet all legal obligations under the UK tax laws and regulations.
- We will proactively determine potential tax risks and opportunities, by systematically preparing risk mapping dashboards combining the major parameters of the tax environment in the UK and the tax specificities and tax history of the Bekaert and BBRG affiliates in the UK
- We will disclose the identified risks with Bekaert Group Control in order to have them correctly and timely reflected in the statutory and group IFRS accounts
- We will take prioritized actions to mitigate the risk and to build up strong technical positions with clear argumentation and documentation of such positions;

II Attitude to Tax Planning (so far as affecting UK taxation)

Within the Bridon-Bekaert Ropes Group we try to structure our operations tax efficiently, as long as it is in line with the tax strategy and takes place in a compliant way, taking into account the legal boundaries. BBRG will not enter into tax structures that are intended for tax avoidance and have no commercial or business purpose. Where the tax law is unclear or subject to interpretation, we will seek for support from external tax advisors supported by appropriate written advice. BBRG strives to optimize the total Tax cost, as long as the integrity and transparency of the proposed business transactions remain standing and accepted by the local legal framework. The objective of being compliant and integer with existing (Tax, ...) legislation is also explicitly expressed in the BBRG Code of Conduct.

III The level of Risk in relation to UK taxation that the Group is prepared to accept

We do not have a formally defined level of acceptable tax risk however we manage our tax risks and will not enter into tax structures that are intended for tax avoidance and have no commercial or business purpose.'

IV Working with HMRC

The way we want to work with HMRC is reflected in one of the key principles included in the Code of Conduct: "All employees are required, at all times, to exhibit the highest integrity and best practice in conduct including , but not limited to, all Interactions with customers, suppliers, trade bodies, the public, fellow employees and clients'.

The open communication on the BBRG Tax strategy in a transparent way and as consistent as possible over time and over regions, aims at maintaining a good and solid relationship with HMRC, all other relevant UK government institutions and all other relevant stakeholders, such as tax advisors, consultants and auditors.
